Governor Brown Declares State of Emergency in Carlsbad to Secure Funds Following December Storms

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr issued a proclamation on 02/29/16 for a series of rainstorms that began on 12/11/15 and swept across San Diego County causing severe damage to the City of Carlsbad. The Proclamation will allow the California Department of Transportation to request funds through the Federal Highway Administration's Emergency Relief Program, Title 23, U.S. Code section 125, for highway repairs or reconstruction.

Please click the link to see the full verbiage of the Proclamation: <https://www.gov.ca.gov/news.php?id=19329>

Weather of Concern

- Northern California will see 0.5-1" of rain in the valley and 2-4 inches of liquid equivalent precipitation over the mountains that will equate to 1-3 feet of new snow.
- High surf conditions will continue to impact beaches of Southern California through early this week. The largest and potentially damaging surf is expected to occur today through Tuesday morning, when breakers of 15 to 22 feet with max sets to 25 feet will be possible along the Central Coast.
- Winter Storm Warnings are in effect until this evening for the entire Sierra Nevada Mountain range and until Tuesday morning for the Kern, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura, and San Diego County mountains.

Activations

- PG&E has activated their Emergency Operations Center to monitor the ongoing precipitation throughout the state. PG&E will have additional crews pre-staging resources to address any potential utility outages.
- AT&T is on stand by and monitoring the situation.
- Los Angeles County Dept of Public Works has activated their Department Operations Center to Level 1 to monitor storm activities. The OA has not activated their EOC.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Cal OES Mission Tasking:

2016-IREOC-21832: Three hand crews are needed to pump up an over flow located on Hwy 70 and Hwy 65 and help with flood fighting efforts (laying visqueen and filling up sandbags). Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

The area sees a relative lull in the otherwise wet and windy pattern today as an upper level ridge builds over the Pacific Northwest. As lapse rate increase with surface heating showers will intensify later today in the onshore flow with the cold air mass overhead. These showers will diminish rapidly as the sun angle decreases and the surface cools late this afternoon into early evening with dew points looking to drop to near or below freezing in places.

Eureka Weather:

The upper level trough continues to bring showers to the region this morning. Showers will taper off this afternoon and evening. After a dry chilly night a weak warm front will bring some light rain Tuesday. Heavier rain is expected Wednesday night and Thursday with additional systems late in the week.

Reno Weather:

Storm pushing through the Sierra today may impact the morning commute with snow covered roads, even in the lower Nevada valleys. Tuesday will bring a brief break in the weather before the pattern turns wet again midweek.

San Francisco Weather:

Widespread showers and isolated thunderstorms will continue this morning. Showers will then taper off this afternoon and mostly end by this evening. Light rain is likely across mainly the Northern portion of the forecast area from late Tuesday through early Wednesday. More significant rainfall is then likely during the second half of the week with precipitation starting in the north bay by Wednesday night and gradually spreading south through Friday. More rain is expected over the upcoming weekend.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Round two of the big weekend storm will continue to bring showers and perhaps a few thunderstorms to the region today before precipitation ends tonight. Heavy snow will continue in the Northern Sierra this morning before tapering off this afternoon. A break in wet weather is then expected into mid-week before more storms impact the region late in the week.

Hanford Weather:

Another storm in a series of storms is expected to move through the central California region Monday bringing even more valley and foothill rain mountain snow breezy winds and possible isolated thunderstorms. Dry weather is forecast over central California Tuesday through Thursday before unsettled weather returns late in the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A vigorous storm system is expected to bring moderate to heavy rain and mountain snow to the area late tonight into Monday with thunderstorms and small hail possible. Fair skies and warmer conditions are expected mid-week before another brief shot of rain next late next week.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

A cold low pressure system from the northwest will move across Southern California and into Northern Baja through tonight bringing strong gusty west to northwest winds with numerous showers and scattered thunderstorms into early this evening decreasing tonight and early Tuesday. Gusty north winds will continue on Tuesday with warming to near average high temperatures. Warmer and dry under high pressure for Wednesday and Thursday with Thursday high temperatures warming to 10 to 15 degrees above average. Cooling to slightly below average high temperatures for next weekend with small chances for mainly light precipitation. At the coast high surf will continue through Tuesday.

Southeast California Weather:

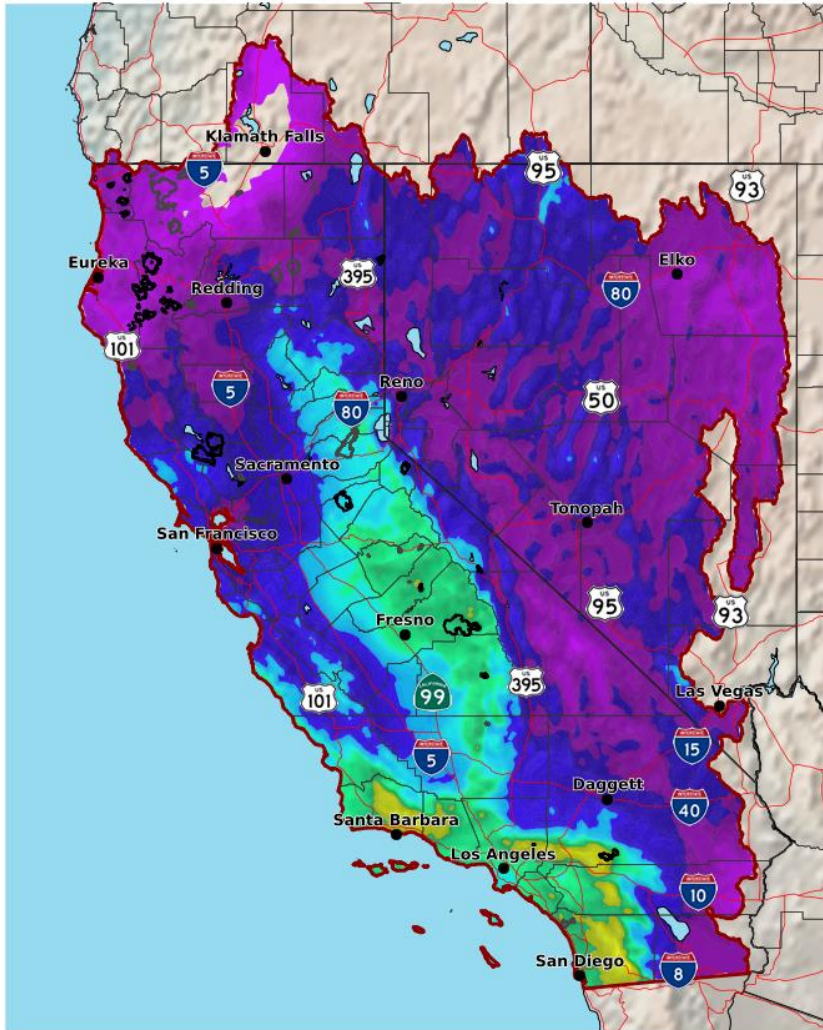

Temperatures will be considerably cooler today dipping below normal as another weather system moves through the region. The system will also bring a good chance of rain today to southeast California with chances decreasing as you go east. Rain chances will continue Tuesday for South-central Arizona. Anticipate breezy to windy conditions today and Monday mainly over Southeast California and Southwest Arizona. A warming trend begins Tuesday with highs well into the 80s Thursday and Friday. Anticipate some modest cooling next weekend.

E/L0912 – Preparing Communities for a Complex Coordinated Attack IEMC: Community Specific

The IEMC: Preparing Communities for a Complex Coordinated Attack (CCA) sponsored by FEMA is a community-specific training initiative designed to improve the ability of local jurisdictions to prepare for, protect against, and respond to complex coordinated attacks. The purpose of this course is to provide a no-consequence environment where participants from multiple disciplines can discuss and analyze the local, state, regional and federal capabilities required to respond to an attack involving coordinated assaults against multiple targets. Through briefings, case studies, facilitated discussions, and planning workshops, participants work through a community-specific attack scenario to identify gaps in their current plans as well as mitigation strategies.

Who Should Attend

This course is for individual communities with populations of approximately 100K or greater. Participation from communities should include senior elected and appointed officials, senior agency officials, tactical level first responders, emergency managers, and other attendees who would have a role in the response to a complex coordinated attack. (EMI campus deliveries are limited to 75 participants).

Questions

If you have specific questions about the Complex Coordinated Attack IEMC program, please contact our Integrated Emergency Management Section staff at 301-447-1381 or via email at FEMA-EMI-IEMB@fema.dhs.gov.
